Hello

Well, we're in the final week of October and what a spooky-good month it's been for Shergroup!

Thursday brought a call that made me smile - a client rang and said she'd contacted two of our competitors earlier that day, but then she watched our YouTube show "Call the Bailiffs: Time to Pay Up" and literally called us straight after because she "was not confident with them after seeing our show." Read that again: she compared three enforcement companies, watched our content, and chose us based on what she saw. That's not marketing fluff - that's real-time proof that transparency and professionalism win every time.

This spooky month of October has been quite the journey for me personally! I spent time at a Masterclass Retreat with the fabulous Jen Lehner, continuing to develop Shergroup Digital. If you like our newsletter and what we're doing with our content, I'd love to chat with you about your own digital journey. Visit our Digital Marketing department in our online store at shergroup.com - we can build you the exact same model in our Genie package along with a refreshed website, socials - the whole spooky lot! Book a call with me and my team and let's talk about what we can create together.

Then I travelled to Delhi, India, to meet my senior team who run our outsourcing department. If you've ever wanted to reduce costs but maintain excellence, I'm happy to share how we've spent two decades building and refining our outsourcing division. Now we're sharing this with our clients to help them increase their operational capability whilst keeping costs under control.

Here's what really got my attention this week though: the sheer diversity of who's discovering our platform. A trainee solicitor learned about our CRAR and forfeiture services during a call about high court applications. A council's entire legal team is now directing all their landlord-tenant matters and debt recovery our way. A letting agency serving Section 8s nationwide wanted to know about our document review and possession claim services. One service conversation leading to discovering we've got everything in our shop - that's exactly what we're here for!

Shergroup has been built by its clients, for its clients. And now we want to share what we know works to help SMEs across the world!

So as we close out October, here's my question for you: are you using Shergroup as a one-off transaction, or are you ready to discover everything we've got in our shop?
